

Treppner Correspondence Course – Combination

The combinations I introduce to you at this stage are only leads and should and could not always be transferred one-to-one. By making your own experiences you will soon perceive that there are no existing borders for the combinations except to your own creativity and imaginativeness. It is likely that you develop different interpretation in connection with the cards that may lead you to other conclusions.

While reading the cards you will and have to collect own experiences-, which is totally normal. The given combinations serve as an aiding introduction and provide a distinguished basis.

Your advantage in this system is, that you can add your own experiences behind the given combinations. This gives you a clear overview of your own thoughts and ideas but offers the possibility to involve the given template.

It is easy for you to orientate with the cards and their special meanings, for the cards have a numerological order. Beginning with No.1 “The Cavalier /Rider” the list continues with No.2 “The Clover” and leads to No.36 “The Cross”. If you are a bit unsure with the cards you may either orientate on the number or the picture of the card. Every other card that should numerological appear later on will be firstly introduced in context with its combination. This helps you keep the track of the matter and you do not have to scroll (or if you print the contents: turn the pages) the whole addendum.

The “main card” is always located on the left- at least you should imagine the combination like this yourself. To the right is the “Combination card”. This is very important, because some symbols such as “The Clouds”, “The Scythe” and “The Mouse/ Mice” receive another meaning in combination. This circumstance is annotated and concerned cards are marked with a special hint.

I listed every combination that makes the expressions repeat themselves but I decided that this repetition serves the reader’s convenience. The combinations’ meanings are not changing when the cards are located side-by-side, one below the other or diagonally. Should this not be the case you can look at the annotations of the main cards. If you encounter different meanings or a repeating meaning you should look at your own situation in detail. If you tell the fortune for others you will realize that a research of the person’s background will be the solution for this problem.

I only deal with the combination of two cards, because these combinations can be connected among each other to receive a continuative meaning.

The charts are especially developed for printing. Right on top you will find the correct symbol in connection with the combination and page.

Should you miss a keyword in the headline you can refer to it as a special case as described beforehand. I wish you a lot of fun with acquiring new cognitions and developing new possible combinations with creativity and imagination.

6. The Clouds (hindrances, throwbacks, an old man (often dastard), ex-husband etc.)

Card no.6 “the Clouds” has a left light and a right dark side. The dark side of “The clouds” have a negative and the light side a positive aspect. The direction of either dark or light side to a Person- or Subject card refers to an aggravation or improvement. I considered that while describing the combination. I will now answer the question concerning the clouds’ location except being next to a Person- or Subject card. If “The Cloud” is located above, they show that the way one is trying to solve a situation is wrong, that one should better consider another possibility. Clouds that are located beneath other cards show an exhausting challenge that one will cope with while using a lot of energy. Diagonal location to another card is treated as if the card was lying next to it.

10. The Scythe (danger, pains, sudden... aggression, harvest etc.)

In case of card No.10 The Scythe it is very important to take a close look at the direction of the sharp part and the shaft. The sharp end often symbolizes danger (relative, not very dramatic) in connection with a person or casualty card. The shaft displays a danger that is over or even never existed. Located above a person or casualty card the scythe is referring to a negative situation that will soon be overcome. If the scythe is located beneath a card one may only detect a reference to cards that are located next or diagonal to the card in combination. The scythe neutralizes negative cards when those are at her right side. There is an easy explanation to this even if a relation seems not to be coherent at first. A Mountain is "cut" by a scythe, which symbolizes a blockade that will be abolished. Clouds disappear faster if a scythe is located left to them because it figuratively crushes them (they are cut).

1. The Cavalier / The Rider: sudden, quick message (also positive)
2. The Clover: sudden luck
3. The Ship: a journey is canceled
4. The House: danger in the house (relative), it becomes difficult to keep the house, perhaps execution sales
